The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 26 and 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kinsley (U.S. Patent 3,026,991) or Schneider (U.S. Patent 4,566,583).

Kinsley and Schneider both show a variable pitch screw that increases in a direction towards an outlet zone.

Re claim 28, portions corresponding to pitch values can be clearly identified.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 17, 19-26 and 28-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over British Patent Application 2,189,205 in view of Schneider or Kinsley.

The British Patent Application shows a screw feeder arranged within a hopper. Not disclosed is a variable pitch which increases towards an outlet zone. However, shown by both Schneider and Kinsley is the concept of using a variable pitch screw which increases in pitch towards an outlet zone. To change the screw of the British Patent Application so as to be variable and increase towards an outlet zone would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art as it is extremely well known in the field of screw conveyors to use variable pitch screws to vary or meter output.

Re claims 19 and 28, the screws of Schneider and Kinsley each clearly have portions of different values.

Re claims 20-23 and 29-32, the claimed ranges for different portions fall within the teachings of Schneider and Kinsley and would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art in order to obtain a desired spacing at an outlet zone.

Re claim 24, the screw is arranged below a hopper.

Re claim 25, shown is a hinged side element 14.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 17, 19-26 and 28-32 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
